Bringing the Community Together A Weekend of Extraordinary Events

Elders Robert George (Qwiahultuhw) and Pamela Bourque, along with helper Joe Akerman, led a profoundly moving welcome ceremony at Xwaaqw'um on Sunday. Salt Springers were invited to add objects to a ceremonial arch to honour the land and its people. Huy tseep q'u siem to all who participated, and to Qwiahultuhw for his teachings and blessings.

Then on Saturday, "CC" (a clown called climate change) led an audience through laughter, tears, fart jokes, game shows, and a sing-a-long. A true community event with the fantastic Dusty Flowerpot Cabaret.

Don't miss out on other events happening throughout September as part of the "On The Rise" Climate Arts Festival!

UPCOMING – SAVE THE DATE!

Sept 24th Community Procession*

It's predicted that the rising tideline will overtake Ganges village by 2100. Can we change this outcome? What does this mean for our community, our wildlife and ecosystems?

Join us in a community procession through Ganges to help express the urgency of our global and local situation. Our goal is to embody the rising tide and become a representation of the encroaching ocean.

Joining us will be Indigenous dancers and a group of performers leading us in a walk through our community. We will end our journey at the Mateada where various speakers and performers will bring us together in our shared experience of the effects of climate change.

LOCATION: Meet us at Mahon Hall around 12:30pm

TIME: Procession starts at 1pm

COST: Free and open to the public
